

Research perspectives on listening in L1 and L2 education.

Keynote speakers Gillian Brown, John Field, Tony Lynch

Date: May 12-13 2006 Venue: the University of Warwick.

Theme:

Researchers in L1 and L2 listening for pedagogic purposes share many of the same concerns, and often investigate in similar areas, yet there have been few opportunities in the past for L1 and L2 researchers from fields such as Education, Psycholinguistics, Linguistics and TESOL to compare findings and pool research about listening. This seminar will provide such an interdisciplinary forum.

Objectives:

- To share issues and methodologies for investigating the role which listening plays in learning
- To bring together researchers working on the role of listening in different areas of education in order to compare practice and findings
- To provide stimulus and form networks for future research projects in the area of listening in education.

Final call for papers / posters In addition to the keynote talks there will be a small number of participatory sessions and poster presentations. There are still some places available for contributions. Please send abstracts to H.Nesi@warwick.ac.uk AND S.Rixon@warwick.ac.uk by April 7 2006
